Weapon (longbow), rare

The limb tips of this magic bow are shaped like a dragon's wings, and the weapon chooses the dragon type based on who wields the weapon. When a creature who has yet to wield this weapon holds it, they roll 1d10 to determine what dragon type the bow manifests into, this type is set to the creature meaning they can not change their dragon type. When you hit with an attack roll using this magic bow, the target takes an extra 1d6 damage of the same type as the breath infused in the bow—acid, cold, fire, force, lightning, necrotic, poison, psychic, radiant, or thunder.

d10	Dragon Type	Damage Type
1	Black	Acid
2	Blue	Lightning
3	Brass	Fire
4	Bronze	Lightning
5	Copper	Acid
6	Gold	Fire
7	Green	Poison
8	Red	Fire
9	Silver	Cold
10	White	Cold

There is no need to load a shot, the weapon produces its own by automatically creating one piece of magic ammunition when you pull back the string. The ammunition created by the bow vanishes immediately after it hits or misses a target.

Proficiency with a longbow allows you to add your proficiency bonus to the attack roll for any attack you make with it.

Notes: Bonus: Magic, Damage: Force, Ammunition, Heavy, Range, Two-Handed
